KLU KLUX VISIT TINLEY PARK

Give $75 to Rev. Palmer at the M. E. Church

With their sudden appearance in two big high powered limousines shrouded in mystery, eleven white robed and hooded members of the Klu Klux Klan created a furor as they drove thru the main thoroughfares of Tinley Park while on their way to visit the M. E. church Sunday night.

At the church there was an interesting song service in progress which was followed by a thrilling and eloquent sermon on "Americanism and the Needs of the Country" by the Rev. E. D. Palmer. It was about 8:15 o'clock and the pastor was just getting underway with his sermon, when the church door was opened very quietly and eleven stalwart white robed and hooded members of the Klu Klux Klan marched thru aisle with solemn tread to the altar as a feeling of awe and excitement fell on the amazed congregation. At the altar the white robed and hooded visitors came to a halt while the middle figure and leader turned to the Rev. Palmer, who had ceased speaking, and said:

"In the age in which we are now living there is an ever increasing need for charity from us all. Where assistance is most deserved and immediate relief most urgent, none know better than yourself, therefore on behalf of the Knights of the Klu Klux Klan I present you the enclosed money and wishing you to use it wherever your wisdom and judgment finds it is most needed."

At the close of these remarks the speaker handed an envelope containing $75 to Rev. Palmer who accepted the same on behalf of the church with thanks. The mysterious visitors after making the sign of the cross, filed out as quietly as they had entered and getting in the waiting cars they were whisked away but none knew whither. In his sermon Rev. Palmer said the Klan has a membership of four million and is getting thousands of new members daily.

A large audience witnessed the incident. News of the Klan visit spread rapidly over the countryside.

John Boeyer and family have moved into their new home. Dick Hopman and family and Fred Goebel and family motored to Solitt, Ill., Sunday to visit with the Edward Schmidt family.

Mrs. Anna Hartman and Mrs. Pigors are having their residences painted.

Henry Miller of Mokena Dies In Wesley Hospital

Henry Miller who has conducted a meat market at Mokena for several years, died Sunday morning at the Wesley Hospital in Chicago. He was taken ill about two months ago and was in the Joliet hospitals for sometime, undergoing an operation at Silver Cross a few weeks ago, for the removal of a tumor from the brain. He remained in a critical condition following the operation. Two weeks ago he was brought home and a week ago Sunday he was taken to the Wesley hospital where he was under the care of a skilled specialist, but he was beyond aid and the end was hastened by a stroke of paralysis.

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning from the late home to the St. Mary's Catholic church in Mokena. Burial in St. cemetery. Mr. Miller was also a member of the Mokena Camp of the M. W. A.

The deceased is survived by his widow and two daughters. He resided in Joliet for many years before he located in Mokena.

Orland Lutheran Church Society 25 Years in Service

May 6th the Ladies' Aid celebrated their 25th anniversary. A crowded church listened with appreciation to a splendid sermon on Luke 10: 38-42. After services a dainty lunch was served in the school. The Young Ladies and Young Men acting as waiters. Of the original 10 who started the Ladies' Aid but three remain. Next Sunday the Ladies' Aid has their annual election of officers. All present will long remember the 25th anniversary.

News Bulletin Will Sponsor Mokena Memorial Program

The News-Bulletin is going to sponsor the Memorial Day program in Mokena this year the same as it did last year. A fine program is being planned for. The graves of the soldiers in the St. Mary, St. John and Marshall cemeteries will be decorated with flowers and flags. All the citizens of the village are invited to take an interest in this celebration and boost for it to make it a success the way it should be. If our neighboring towns can have such successful Memorial Day programs each year, why should Mokena be a back-woods number and not be patriotic enough to honor its soldier dead? There are more soldiers buried in the three Mokena cemeteries than in any of the other nearby towns. All the more reason why Mokena should be anxious to celebrate a Memorial Day every year.

Former Mokena Girl Weds Manhattan Man

Miss Ethelyn Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nelson of Chicago, and Wm. Jones, son of Mr. P. Jones of Manhattan were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents in Chicago Saturday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. Rev. A. R. Mangus, pastor of the Mokena M. E. church officiating. The ring ceremony was used.

The bride was prettily attired in reind-colored canton crepe and wore a corsage bouquet of pink sweet peas.

The attendants were Alvin Weber and Miss Helen Ganke of Manhattan the latter being gowned in brown canton crepe.

The rooms were decorated in pink and white. A sumptuous wedding dinner was served. Only the immediate families of both parties were present.

The bride has been keeping house for eleven years for her brother Byron, who is working his father's farm west of Mokena. She is a member of the Mokena M. E. church and was much interested as a co-worker in the Ladies' Aid and teacher in the Sunday school. Her many friends wish her much happiness.

Mokena Nearly Had A Boom It Is Said

A story has just become known how close Mokena came to having a boom. A real estate man in Chicago who has been building up towns looked favorably on Mokena and had an eye on the Maltby farm north of town. It was said this farm could be bought for $160 per acre, but when this real estate man tried to negotiate a deal the price was popped up to $200 per acre and the deal was off.

The real estate man in question built up a small town on the C. B. & Q. Railroad from a handful of people to a thriving suburban town of 2000 in 19 months. He built a bank and in fact put up a real model town and with the assistance of the C. B. & Q. Railroad, this was made a flourishing town.

The same plan was to be worked out in Mokena had the deal mentioned gone through. This town being located on one of the best railroads in the country and only an hour's ride from the Chicago loop, should be a thriving place. Mokena needs a boom like the real estate man mentioned, gave the town on the Burlington road. New people and lots of them and of the right kind would soon make this a thriving suburban town. Perhaps some day the chance will present itself for a real estate company to slip in without having the price of land popped up on them.

Take Midlothian for instance. A few years ago the depot was the only building to be seen and now it has the appearance of a coming town. The past week, the Stone Lakes Farm, a tract of 185 acres on 147th street, Midlothian, formerly the home of the late William J. Shedd, millionaire ice cream manufacturer and coffee importer, was sold for subdivision in the Lake Shore Realty Company of Chicago. The price paid was $125 per acre.

Six small lakes, fed by natural springs, will be featured in the new sub-division. The Lake Shore Realty Company will landscape the whole sub-division with shrubbery and trees and build a ten acre park in the center surrounding the small ponds. The property will be highly restricted and placed on the market in less than 30 days, it is announced. The Midlothian station on the Rock Island, forty minutes out from the loop.

Mokena "Go to Church Campaign" Has An Excellent Start

The first Sunday evening service in the "Go to Church" Campaign of the Mokena M. E. church was held Sunday evening and there was a fine attendance. Two new members, Mrs. Olson and Mrs. Smith were received into full church membership. This was Rally Day. Miss Edith Mays, Miss Russell and Mr. Frank E. Goodnough of Chicago furnished special music and songs for the service. Rev. A. R. Mangus preached a stirring sermon in which he made the significant statement that in the second century the Romans marveled at the love the Christians showed for one another, but in the twentieth century the Oriental people marveled also at the way in which the "Christians" hated and killed one another. He showed that the Great War laid bare the top soil and we found that we never did have nor have now a boasted Christian civilization. As long as hate and bitterness exists among nations we have no right to say that we have a Christian civilization, for were this so, only peace and the Brotherhood of Man would exist.

Next Sunday Mother's Day will be observed at this church with a special service.

LINDA!

SYNOPSIS.—At the death of his foster father, Bruce Duncan, in an eastern city, receives a mysterious message, sent by a Mrs. Ross, summoning him peremptorily to southern Oregon—to meet "Linda." Bruce has vivid but baffling recollections of his childhood in an orphanage, before his adoption by Newton Duncan, with the girl Linda. At his destination, Trail's End, news that a message has been sent to Bruce is received with marked displeasure by a man introduced to the reader as "Simon." Leaving

Mr. Sprague has a Federal Accredited herd, and is doing everything in his power to keep this herd clean.

These men are well pleased with the purchase at the sale. Since it was a busy season, many of the buyers were in the field, and consequently the sale went very reasonably.

no other reason than that he had always made a point of keeping in the best of physical condition. Besides, there was something more potent than mere physical strength to sustain him now. It was the realization of the nearing end of the trail—a knowledge of tremendous revelations that would come to him in a few hours more.

Already great truths were taking shape in his brain; he only needed a single sentence of explanation to connect them all together. He began to feel a growing excitement and impatience.

It was quite dark now, and he could barely see the trail. For the first time he began to despair, feeling that another night of overpowering impatience must be spent before he could reach Trail's End. The stars began to push through the darkening sky. Then, fainter than the gleam of a firefly, he saw the faint light of a far distant camp fire.

His heart bounded. He knew what was there. It was the end of the trail at last. And it guided him the rest of the way. When he reached the top of a little rise in the trail, the whole scene was laid out in mystery below him.

The fire had been built at the door of a mountain house—a log structure of perhaps four rooms. The firelight played in its open doorway. Something beside it caught his attention, and instinctively he followed it with his eyes until it ended in an incredible region of the stars. It was a great pine tree, the largest he had ever seen—seemingly a great sentinel over all the land.

But the sudden awe that came over him at the sight of it was cut short by the sight of a girl's figure in the firelight. He had an instant's sense that he had come to the wilderness heart at last, that this tall tree was its symbol, that if he could understand the eternal watch that it kept over this mountain world, he would have an understanding of all things—but all these thoughts were submerged in the realization that he had come back to Linda at last.

He had known how the mountains would seem. All that he had beheld today was just the recurrence of things he had long ago. Nothing had seemed different from what he had expected; rather he had a sense that a lost world had been returned to him, and it was almost as if he had never been away. But the girl in the firelight did not answer in the least degree the picture he had carried of Linda.

He remembered her as a blond-headed little girl with irregular features and a rather unreasonable allowance of homeliness. All the way he had thought of her as a baby sister—not as a woman in her flower.

For a long second he gazed at her in speechless amazement.

Why her hair was no longer blond, why it had peculiar red lights when the firelight shone through it; but he knew by the light of day it would be brown. He remembered her as an awkward little thing that was hardly able to keep her feet under her. This tall girl had the wilderness other face—which is the grace of a deer only blind eyes cannot see it. He only knew that she wore a khaki-colored skirt and a simple blouse of white tied with a blue scarf. Her arms were bare in the fire's gleam, and there was a dark beauty about her face that simply could not be denied.

She came toward him, and her hands were open before her. And her lips trembled. Bruce could see them in the firelight.

It was a strange meeting. The firelight gave it a tone of unreality, and the whole forest world seemed to pause in its whispered business as if to watch. It was as if they had been brought face to face by the mandates of an inexorable destiny.

"So you've come?" the girl said. The words were spoken unusually soft, scarcely above a whisper; but they were inexpressibly vivid to Bruce. They told first of a boundless relief and joy at his coming. But more than that, in these deep vibrant tones was the expression of an unquenchable life and spirit. Every fiber of the body lived in the fullest sense; he knew this fact the instant that she spoke.

She smiled at him, ever so quietly. "Bwovaboo," she said, recalling the name by which she called him in her babyhood, "you've come to Linda."

CHAPTER IX

As the fire burned down to coals and the stars wheeled through the sky, Linda told her story. The two of them were seated in the soft grass in front of the cabin, and the moonlight was on Linda's face as she talked. She talked very low at first, indeed there was no need for loud tones. The whole wilderness world was heavy with silence, and a whisper carried far. Besides, Bruce was just beside her, watching her with narrowed eyes, forgetful of everything except her story.

"I've waited a long time to tell you this," she told him. "Of course, when we were babies together in the orphanage, I didn't even know it. It has taken me a long time since to learn all the details; most of them I got from my aunt, old Elmira, whom you talked to on the way out. Part of it I knew by intuition, and a little of it is still doubtful.

"You ought to know first how hard I have tried to reach you. Of course, I didn't try openly except at first—the first years after I came here, and before I was old enough to understand." She spoke the last word with a curious depth of feeling and a perceptible hardness about her lips and eyes. "I remembered just two things. That the man who had adopted you was Newton Duncan; one of the nurses at the asylum told me that. And I remembered the name of the city where he had taken you.

"You must understand the difficulties I worked under. There is no rural free delivery up here, you know, Bruce. Our mail is sent from and delivered to the little post office at Martin's store—over fifteen miles from here. And some one member of a certain family that lives near here goes down every week to get the mail for the entire district.

"At first—and that was before I really understood—I wrote you many letters and gave them to one of the family to mail for me. I was just a child then, you must know, and I lived in the same house with these people. They were just baby letters from—from Linda-Tinda to Bwovaboo—letters about the deer and the berries and the squirrels—and all the wild things that lived up here."

"Berries!" Bruce cried. "I had some on the way up." His tone wavered, and he seemed to be speaking far away. "I had some once—long ago."

"Yes. You will understand, soon. I didn't understand why you didn't answer my letters. I understand now, though. You never got them."

"No. I never got them. But there are several Duncans in my city. They might have gone astray."

"They went astray—but it was before they ever reached the post office. They were never mailed, Bruce. I was to know why, later. Even then it was part of the plan that I should never get in communication with you again—that you would be lost to me forever.

"When I got older, I tried other tactics. I wrote to the asylum, enclosing a letter to you. But those letters were not mailed, either.

"Now we can skip a long time. I grew up. I knew everything at last and no longer lived with the family I mentioned before. I came here, to this old house—and made it decent to live in. I cut my own wood for my fuel except when one of the men tried to please me by cutting it for me. I wouldn't use it at first. Oh, Bruce—I wouldn't touch it!"

Her face was no longer lovely. It was drawn with terrible passions. But she quieted at once.

"At last I saw plainly that I was a little fool—that all they would do for me, the better off I was. At first, I almost starved to death because I wouldn't use the food that they sent me. I tried to grub it out of the hills. But I came to it at last. But, Bruce, there were many things I didn't come to. Since I learned the truth, I have never given one of them a smile except in scorn, not a word that wasn't a word of hate.

"You are a city man, Bruce. You don't know what hate means. It doesn't live in the cities. But it lives up here. Believe me, if you ever believed anything—that it lives up here. The most bitter and the blackest hate—from birth until death! It burns out the heart, Bruce. But I don't know that I can make you understand."

She paused, and Bruce looked away into the pine forest. He believed the girl. He knew that this grim land was the home of direct and primitive emotions. Such things as mercy and remorse were out of place in the game trails where the wolf pack hunted the deer.

"When they knew how I hated them," she went on, "they began to watch me. And once they knew that I had fully understood the situation, I was no longer allowed to leave this little valley. There are only two trails, Bruce. One goes to Elmira's cabin on the way to the store. The other encircles the mountain. With all their numbers, it was easy to keep watch of those trails. And they told me what they would do if they found me trying to go past."

"You don't mean—they threatened you?"

She threw back her head and laughed, but the sound had no joy in it. "Threatened! If you think threats are common up here, you are a greener tenderfoot than ever I took you for. Bruce, the law up here is the law of force. The strongest wins. The weakest dies. Wait till you see Simon. You'll understand then—and you'll shake in your shoes."

The words grated upon him, yet he didn't resent them. "I've seen Simon," he told her.

She glanced toward him quickly, and it was entirely plain that the quiet tone in his voice had surprised her. Perhaps the faintest flicker of admiration came into her eyes.

Perhaps the Faintest Flicker of Admiration Came Into Her Eyes.

"He tried to stop you, did he? Of course he would. And you came, anyway. May heaven bless you for it, Bruce!" She leaned toward him, appealing. "And forgive me what I said."

Bruce stared at her in amazement. He could hardly realize that this was the same voice that had been so torn with passion a moment before. In an instant all her hardness was gone, and the tenderness of a sweet and wholesome nature had taken its place. He felt a curious warmth stealing over him.

"They meant what they said, Bruce. Believe me, if those men can do no other thing, they can keep their word. They didn't just threaten death to me. I could have run the risk of that. Badly as I wanted to make them pay before I died, I would have gladly run that risk.

"You are amazed at the free way I speak of death. The girls you know, in the city, don't even know the word. They don't know what it means. They don't understand the sudden end of the light—the darkness—the cold—the awful fear that it is! It's a reality here, something to fight against every hour of every day. There are just three things to do in the mountains—to live and love and hate. There's no softness. There's no middle ground." She smiled grimly.

"I've lived with death, and I've heard of it, and I've seen it all my life. If there hadn't been any other way, I would have seen it in the dramas of the wild creatures that go on around me all the time. You'll get down to cases here, Bruce—or else you'll run away. These men said they'd do worse things to me than kill me—and I didn't dare take the risk.

"But once or twice I was able to get word to old Elmira—the only ally I had left. She was of the true breed, Bruce. You'll call her a hag, but she's a woman to be reckoned with. She could hate too—worse than a she-rattlesnake hates the man that killed her mate—and hating is all that's kept her alive. You shrink when I say the word. Maybe you won't shrink when I'm done.

"This old woman tried to get in communication with every stranger that visited the hills. You see, Bruce, she couldn't write, herself. And the one time I managed to get a written message down to her, telling her to give it to the first stranger to mail—one of my enemies got it away from her. I expected to die that night. I wasn't going to be alive when the clan came. The only reason I didn't was because Simon—the greatest of them all and the one I hate the most—kept his clan from coming. He had his own reasons.

"From then on she had to depend on word of mouth. But at last—just a few weeks ago—she found a man that knew you. And it is your story from now on."

They were still a little while. Bruce arose and threw more wood on the fire.

"It's only the beginning," he said. "And you want me to tell you all?"

She asked hesitantly.

"Of course. Why did I come here?"

"You won't believe me when I say that I'm almost sorry I sent for you." She spoke almost breathlessly. "I didn't know that it would be like this. That you would come with a smile on your face and a light in your eyes, looking for happiness. And instead of happiness—to find all this!"

She stretched out her arms to the forests. Bruce understood her perfectly. She did not mean the woods in the literal sense. She meant the primal emotions that were their spirit.

"To know the rest, you've got to go back a whole generation. Bruce, have you heard of the terrible blood-feuds that the mountain families sometimes have?"

"Of course. Many times."

"These mountains of Trail's End have been the scene of as deadly a blood-feud as was ever known in the West. And for once, the wrong was all on one side.

"A few miles from here there is a wonderful valley, where a stream flows. There is not much tillable land in these mountains, Bruce, but there, along that little stream, there are almost five sections—three thousand acres—of as rich land as was ever plowed. That tract of land was acquired long ago by a family named Ross, and they got it through some kind of grant. I can't be definite as to the legal aspects of all this story. They don't matter anyway—only the results remain.

"These Ross men were frontiersmen of the first order. They were virtuous men too—trusting every one, and oh! what strength they had! With their own hands they cleared away the forest and put the land into rich pasture and hay and grain. They raised great herds of cattle and had flocks of sheep too.

"It was then that dark days began to come. Another family—headed by the father of the man I call Simon—migrated here from the mountain districts of Oklahoma. But they were not so ignorant as many mountain people, and they were 'killers.' Perhaps that's a word you don't know. Perhaps you didn't know it existed. A killer is a man that has killed other men. It isn't a hard thing to do at all, Bruce, after you are used to it. These people were used to it. And because they wanted these great lands—my own father's home—they began to kill the Rosses.

"At first they made no war on the Folders. The Folders, you must know, were good people, too, honest to the last penny. They were connected, by marriage only, to the Ross family. They were on our side clear through. At the beginning of the feud the head of the Folders family was just a young man, newly married. And he had a son after a while.

"The newcomers called it a feud. But it wasn't a feud—it was simply murder. Oh, yes, we killed some of them. Folders and my father and all his kin united against them, making a great clan—but they were nothing in strength compared to the usurpers. Simon himself was just a boy when it began. But he grew to be the greatest power, the leader of the enemy clan before he was twenty-one.

"You must know, Bruce, that my own father held the land. But he was so generous that his brothers who helped him farm it hardly realized that possession was in his name. And father was a dead shot. It took a long time before they could kill him."

The coldness that had come over her words did not in the least hide her depth of feeling. She gazed moodily into the darkness and spoke almost in a monotone.

"But Simon—just a boy then—and Dave, his brother, and the others of them kept after us like so many wolves. There was no escape. The only thing we could do was to fight back—and that was the way we learned to hate. A man can hate, Bruce, when he is fighting for his home. He can learn it very well when he sees his brother fall dead, or his father—or a stray bullet hit his wife. A woman can learn it, too, as old Elmira did, when she finds her son's body in the dead leaves. There was no law here to stop it. The little semblance of law that was in the valleys below regarded it as a blood-feud, and didn't bother itself about it. Besides—at first we were too proud to call for help. And after our numbers were few, the trails were watched—and those who tried to go down into the valleys—never got there.

"One after another the Rosses were killed, and I needn't make it any worse for you than I can help—by telling of each killing. Enough to say that at last no one was left except a few old men whose eyes were too dim to shoot straight, and my own father. And I was a baby then—just born.

"Then one night my father—seeing the fate that was coming down upon them—took the last course to defeat them. Matthew Folders—a connection by marriage—was still alive. Simon's clan hadn't attacked him yet. He had no share in the land, but instead lived in this house I live in now. He had a few cattle and some pasture land farther down the Divide. There had been no purpose in killing him. He hadn't been worth the extra bullet.

"One night my father left me asleep and stole through the forests to talk to him. They made an agreement. I have pieced it out, a little at a time. My father deeded all his land to Folders.

"I can understand now. The enemy clan pretended it was a blood-feud only—and that it was fair war to kill the Rosses. Although my father knew their real aim was to obtain the land, he didn't think they would dare kill Matthew Folders to get it. He knew that he himself would fall, sooner or later, but he thought that to kill Folders would show their cards—and that would be too much, even for Simon's people. But he didn't know. He hadn't foreseen to what lengths they would go."

Bruce leaned forward. "So they killed—Matthew Folders?" he asked.

He didn't know that his face had gone suddenly stark white, and that a curious glitter had come to his eyes. He spoke breathlessly. For the name—Matthew Folders—called up vague memories that seemed to reveal great truths to him. The girl smiled grimly.

"Let me go on. My father deeded Folders the land. The deed was to go on record so that all the world would know that Folders owned it, and if the clan killed him it was plainly for the purposes of greed alone. But there was also a secret agreement—drawn up in black and white and to be kept hidden for twenty-one years. In this agreement, Folders promised to return to me—the only living heir of the Rosses—the lands acquired by the deed. In reality, he was only holding them in trust for me, and was to return them when I was twenty-one. In case of my father's death, Folders was to be my guardian until that time.

"Folders knew the risk he ran, but he was a brave man and he did not care. Besides, he was my father's friend—and friendship goes far in the mountains. And my father was shot down before a week was past.

"The clan had acted quick, you see. When Folders heard of it, before the dawn, he came to my father's house and carried me away. Before another night was done he was killed too."

The perspiration leaped out on Bruce's forehead. The red glow of the fire was in his eyes.

"He fell almost where this fire is built, with a thirty-three bullet in his brain. Which one of the clan killed him I do not know—but in all probability it was Simon himself—at that time only eighteen years of age. And Folders' little boy—something past four years old—wandered out in the moonlight, to find his father's body."

The girl was speaking slowly now, evidently watching the effect of her words on her listener. He was bent forward, and his breath came in queer, whispering gusts. "Go on!" he ordered savagely. "Tell me the rest. Why do you keep me waiting?"

"The girl smiled again—like a sorceress. 'Folders' wife was from the plains country," she told him slowly.

"If she had been of the mountains she might have remained to do some killing on her own account. Like old Elmira herself remained to do—killing on her own account! But she was from cities, just as you are, but she—unlike you—had no mountain blood in her. She wasn't used to death, and perhaps she didn't know how to hate. She only knew how to be afraid."

"They say that she went almost insane at the sight of that strong, brave man of hers lying still in the pine needles. She hadn't even known he was out of the house. He had gone out on some secret business—late at night. She had only one thing left—her baby boy and her little foster-daughter—little Linda Ross, who is before you now. Her only thought was to get those children out of that dreadful land of bloodshed and to hide them so that they could never come back. And she didn't even want them to know their true parentage. She seemed to realize that if they had known, both of them would return some time—to collect their debts. Sooner or later, that boy with the Folders blood in him and that girl with the Ross blood would return, to attempt to regain their ancient holdings, and to make the clan pay!"

"All that was left were a few old women with hate in their hearts and a strange tradition to take the place of hope. They said that some time, if death spared them, they would see Folders' son come back again, and assert his rights. They said that a new champion would arise and right their wrongs. But mostly death didn't spare them. Only old Elmira is left."

"What became of the secret agreement I do not know. I haven't any hope that you do, either. The deed was carried down to the courts by Sharp, one of the witnesses who managed to get past the guard, and put on file soon after it was written. The rest is short. Simon and his clan took up the land, swearing that Matthew Folders had deeded it to them the day he had procured it. They had a deed to show for it—a forgery. And the one thing that they feared, the one weak chain, was that this secret agreement between Folders and my father would be found."

"You see what that would mean. It would show that he had no right to deed away the land, as he was simply holding it in trust for me. Old Elmira explained the matter to me—if I get mixed up on the legal end of it, excuse it. If that document could be found, their forged deed would be obviously invalid. And it angered them that they could not find it."

"Of course they never filed their forged deed—afraid that the forgery would be discovered—but they kept it to show to any one that was interested. But they wanted to make themselves still safer."

"There had been two witnesses to the agreement. One of them, a man named Sharp, died—or was killed—shortly after. The other, an old trapper named Hudson, was indifferent to the whole matter—he was just passing through and was at Folders' house for dinner the night Ross came. He is still living in these mountains, and he might be of value to us yet."

"Of course the clan did not feel at all secure. They suspected the secret agreement had been mailed to some one to take care of, and they were afraid that it would be brought to light when the time was ripe. They knew perfectly that their forged deed would never stand the test, so one of the things to do was to prevent their claim ever being contested. That meant to keep Folders' son in ignorance of the whole matter."

"I hope I can make that clear. The deed from my father to Folders was on record. Folders was dead, and Folders' son would have every right and opportunity to contest the clan's claim to the land. If he could get the matter into court, he would surely win."

"The second thing to do was to win me over. I was just a child, and it looked the easiest course of all. That's why I was stolen from the orphanage by one of Simon's brothers. The idea was simply that when the time came I would marry one of the clan and establish their claim to the land forever."

"Up to a few weeks ago it seemed to me that sooner or later I would win out. Bruce, you can't dream what it meant! I thought that some time I could drive them out and make them pay, a little, for all they have done. But they've tricked me, after all. I thought that I would get word to Folders' son, who by inheritance would have a clear title to the land, and he, with the aid of the courts, could drive these usurpers out. But just recently I've found out that even this chance is all but gone."

He put his arms about her and he kissed her gently on the lips.

Origin of the Zuider Zee.

The Zuider Zee is a result of the bursting of the dykes. This happened in the Thirteenth century, and, in addition to Holland being cut in two, and Friesland being separated from the rest of the country by a large sheet of water, hundreds of villages were submerged and about 80,000 persons were drowned.

98 OUT OF EVERY 100 WOMEN BENEFITED

An Absolutely Reliable Statement
Important to Every Woman

Remarkable Results Shown by a Nation
Wide Canvass of Women Purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. 50,000 Women Answer

For some time a circular has been enclosed with each bottle of our medicine bearing this question: "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?"

Replies, to date, have been received from over 50,000 women answering that question.

98 per cent of which say YES. That means that 98 out of every 100 women who take the medicine for the ailments for which it is recommended are benefited by it.

This is a most remarkable record of efficiency. We doubt if any other medicine in the world equals it.

Think of it—only two women out of 100 received no benefit—98 successes out of a possible 100.

Did you ever hear anything like it? We must admit that we, ourselves, are astonished.

Such evidence should induce every woman suffering from any ailment peculiar to her sex to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and see if she can't be one of the 98. The Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

As a general thing, progress waits upon the elimination of some ass whose intentions are good.

A Delicious Dessert.

With a small jar of preserved fruit a delicious dessert can be made in a few minutes with Plymouth Rock Gelatine. One box of Gelatine will make four pints of jelly flavored exactly as you like it.—Advertisement.

There are times when every small boy wonders what parents are good for.

Of course we know that our medicine does benefit the large majority of women who take it. But that only two out of 100 received no benefit is most astonishing.

It only goes to prove, however, that a medicine specialized for certain definite ailments—not a cure all—one that is made by the most scientific process; not from drugs, but from a combination of nature's roots and herbs, can and does do more good than hastily prepared prescriptions.

You see, we have been making, improving and refining this medicine for over 50 years until it is so perfect and so well adapted to women's needs that it actually has the virtue to benefit 98 out of every 100 women who take it.

Its reliability and recognized efficiency has gained for it a sale in almost every country in the world—leading all others.

The Arm of Strength

By REV. H. OSTROM, D. D.
Extension Department, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

TEXT—To whom is the arm of the Lord revealed?—Isaiah 53:1.

In this prophecy of Isaiah the arm of the Lord is described as the "strong arm," the "glorious arm," and the arm on which people may with safety "trust."—Isaiah 62:8; 63:12; 51:5. Israel was assured by the Lord that He would redeem them with "a stretched out arm." "Mine arm also shall strengthen him," sings the Psalmist in cheerful prophecy.

But to whom is it revealed? Who has the eyes of faith that he may see it? That arm that took the little children up and cuddled them close, that held forth the "finger" from which demons fled, that was stretched forth on the cross in death for the world, the arm that alone could gather lost men to the very heart of God? Is it considered by many as a mere human arm of flesh and nothing more? The whole chapter under consideration favors our Lord Jesus in humiliation. It so perfectly describes that arm reaching down, down, for man the sinner, until at length he "divides the spoil with the strong."

Men may forget God, but though consciousness of His call and of His presence may be wanting, His strong arm is nevertheless close by them. It reaches forth to draw them into its embrace but they swerve from it. They fail to realize it, just as Israel failed in old Judea, and they are astray. Ah, soul, that was a strong arm, a stretched out arm, a glorious arm, a delivering arm. Give thought to it. Let it be revealed to you. It holds forth a hand pleaded for you and me.

Because of the great humility with which our Lord came to earth the many rejected Him. They looked for pomp and display of majesty. Blinded by their self-made pictures they could not see in the "lowly of heart" the world's Redeemer. Many today, I fear, do not see this delivering arm of the Lord for the same reason. Who would of himself imagine the Lord of Glory walking this earth as "a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief"? It so surpasses what we would think possible that unless we believe the Gospel it can never be revealed. It is not so much the mystery of the exalted, the mighty, the authoritative, it is rather the mystery of the humiliated and the sacrificed One.

For this reason we must hasten to consider it. Not for people who could reach out clean hands to grasp His did He come but for those whose hands must be washed. Not for people who could pay did he come—that arm offers us eternal life and all that it implies as a free gift. It is, too, the arm of His strength reached down to our palsies, our faintness, and our death, offering to us the healing, saving, vital power that can never be exhausted.

The arm of a babe in Bethlehem's manger, the arm of a commander among the merchandise-mongers in the temple, the arm of a Savior on Calvary's tree, the arm of a conqueror as, after His resurrection He lifts it in blessing—but ever and always "the arm of the Lord." There in Bethlehem as if to reach and fondle us in babyhood, there in the temple as if to compel us to reverence God and rise above the perishing things of clay and the mere formalities of religion, there on the Cross as if to embrace in mercy and forgiving grace all the world, and there after the resurrection, lifted in blessing as if to emphasize the fact that all power is indeed in it and therefore the blessing is sure to whoever will receive it.

The whole story of the most stupendous loss possible to man is suggested by those two words, "to whom?" They cause us to ask, "All this, and may I fail to realize it?" "To Whom" is the arm of the Lord revealed?

Let the struggling generations of men pass by in review and note each man as he passes. There is one of Tarsus, he stands within the embrace of that arm. Arraigned and maligned, ready to be offered, in the strength of it could his soul grip the meaning of the words, "neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." There is might in that arm to "hold us fast." There is the fisherman who could say "kept by the power of God." That same arm his defense. Thus one after another they pass, both those to whom that arm has been revealed and those to whom it has not. The long line dwindles to an end. Now it is you and I who must take our places in its moving rank. Each moment is filled with the appeal of the words, "To Whom, To Whom?" Humbly would my redeemed soul answer "It has found me, it has reached my need, I am rescued." But what shall be your answer? Are you one of the "whom?"

O, soul, listen! It is not like an arm that cannot reach us. The child that fell into the cistern could not be reached by the frantic mother because her arm was too short, but the arm of the Lord. What a reach! Our need may have seemed great yesterday only to seem greater today—ever, ever increasing—but with one look of real faith it is proven that "His right hand and His holy arm hath gotten him the victory" and victory in our behalf.

TERRY PRESENTS MORE EVIDENCE

Declares Tanlac Restored Him
Recently for Second Time.

"About six years ago I sent in a statement for Tanlac and had a great many people ask me if it were really so that the medicine did so much for me. My answer was, 'Yes, indeed, even more,' and I am glad to say it all over again that Tanlac has no equal," said John L. Terry, 926 N. Third St., Springfield, Ill., the other day.

"Six years ago I was a sick man—completely run down and unable to get a particle of relief from my troubles. My old friend, Bob Clarkson, the druggist, put me on to Tanlac and the treatment fixed me up to where I felt like a new man, and I told Bob it couldn't be beat.

"I stayed in fine trim until two years ago when I felt run down again, so I took the treatment the second time, and haven't felt the need of medicine since. There's only one medicine for me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 87 million bottles sold.—Advertisement.

She Is, Is He?

It was while the World war was raging in Europe that a woman from the rural districts of a southern Kentucky county, visiting some new acquaintances in town, made the following remark:

"Yes, my niece is 'over there,' right in the thick of all that fighting!"

"Is your niece a Red Cross nurse?" asked the young woman hostess very much interested.

"No, he's a soldier."

Mrs. Barton French, who had taken a villa on the sea near Monte Carlo for the winter, said at a dinner party: "We Americans are poor linguists as a rule. I remember a story that Lord Dunraven once told me about Jay Gould.

"Jay Gould was visiting Paris, and Lord Dunraven devoted a day to driving him over the city. There happened to be a good many apartments to let at the time, and to let signs—A Louer—were stuck up everywhere. Jay Gould didn't seem to notice the Arc de Triomphe, or Notre Dame, or anything. A queer, silent little chap, Lord Dunraven said.

"But at the end of the day's sight-seeing Mr. Gould displayed a little interest at last.

"Who's this here A. Louer, Mr. Dunraven?" he said. 'Seems a pretty prominent feller.'"

Why divide the family at breakfast?

WHY take coffee for yourself, while saying "No" to the children? It is true, as most parents are careful to explain, that little folks should not endanger health and growth through the drug element in coffee and tea, but—

Your health is valuable, too—and their desire for a hot drink with breakfast may be as great as yours.

There's complete satisfaction in Postum, and safety alike for young and old. Postum is a pure cereal beverage. It is coffee-like in color and flavor, but free from any element that can harm. Thousands who are now saying "No" to themselves as well as to the children, as a safeguard against coffee-ills, have found better comfort and better health, in Postum.

Your grocer sells Postum in two forms: Instant Postum (in tins) prepared instantly in the cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages) for those who prefer the flavor brought out by boiling fully 20 minutes. The cost of either is about one-half cent a cup.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

THE OLD CIRCLE

THE natural inclination in man, when he is lost in the woods, or is floundering around in business for which he is not qualified, is to move in a circle.

The carrier pigeon flies straight to his destination; the horse goes unguided through the darkest night to his stable.

A man may have genius or merely ordinary talent, but if he cannot move straight ahead, think clearly and keep his mind upon his work, he is plodding around and around, arriving at the end of the year at about the same spot from which he started, still befuddled, and decidedly less courageous.

Such a man, and there are thousands of them, is not built for success. He is apt to take no reckoning of his progress until some one beside him who has been thinking effectively in straight lines moves up to where opportunity is greater and reward is richer.

This rude awakening causes but a temporary shock to his numb sensibilities, lasting perhaps a day or two, but producing in him no material change for the better.

If any serious doubt as to his ability should come to him at such a time as this, it is instantly banished as too burdensome, and he continues his aimless trot in the old circle.

He doesn't ask himself whether he is dependable, whether he thinks constructively or whether he thinks at all. He doesn't ask whether he is given to watching the clock and stealing away frequently from his work to inhale the aroma of his favorite cigarette.

He doesn't ask whether he in all his time in his present position has made a single suggestion of value to his employer.

Ah, no! He has the faculty of avoiding dubious obligations, especially those that would be likely to impose upon him an additional stroke of work, or interfere with his plans for pleasure among his night associates.

Such a man is not qualified for straight thinking or straight going. He is not capable of handling things with intelligence and in the depths of his heart he knows it.

He is a failure, and for no other reason in the world than his own perverseness in moving in the old circle—wandering about the best part of his life in the wilderness.

Avoid Affection.

It is highly desirable that you should be one man, all of one piece, and appear outwardly such as you are inwardly.—William Law.

Stages of "Life."

Life is rather a state of embryo—a preparation for life. A man is not completely born until he has passed through death.—Franklin.

THE COMMON HEART

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

THE Lord has made us much alike, And made us all akin: Three meals a day, and work and play, And night to slumber in. We're high and low, we're rich and poor, And think we are apart; But, in our pain, our joy again, We have the common heart.

The Lord has made us much alike, However else it seems; The poorest man has still his plan, His visions and his dreams. And, if humanity shall rise, Together we must start, The high and low together, so We have the common heart.

The Lord has made us much alike, And made us all like to Him. Build not so high the shadows lie Another's path to dim. All you can suffer He can feel, And tears of sorrow smart The eyes of all, as hotly fall Upon the common heart.

The Lord has made us much alike, Think not of clan nor class, But understand and shape the land Remembering the mass. Grant rich or poor the rightly his, There lies the statesman's art— With justice thrilled, the nation build Upon the common heart!

Uncommon Sense

By JOHN BLAKE

DON'T BE SCARED

FEAR has done more harm in the world than drunkenness—which is saying a good deal.

The sooner you eliminate fear from your make-up, the sooner you will get where you are trying to go.

The man who has the best chance in the world is the man who is afraid to be scared—who has learned to fear fear.

The fear that saps a man's purpose and leaves him trembling and helpless on the threshold of life has many forms.

There is the fear of the rich and powerful—too common, even in this day when the rich and powerful can do little harm to their fellows.

There is the fear of poverty—a real fear, and one which is harder to shake off than all the others.

There is the fear of what other people will say, the fear of being ridiculed—the commonest and perhaps the most mischievous form.

Get them all out of your system. Remember that the rich and the powerful, of whose greatness you stand in awe, are only human beings, and that they have little reason for wanting to injure you, even if it were possible.

Get rid of the fear of poverty by thrift and frugality, which will enable you if necessary to live on little, and give you a reserve to tide you over if the loss of a job temporarily strands you on the beach.

As to the fear of ridicule, forget it altogether. The opinion of other people is more negligible than you suppose. And those who would ridicule you because you are working hard and with a purpose are moved more by jealousy than any other motive.

As soon as you discover that other people can be afraid of you, you will cease to be afraid of them. Then your fears gradually will subside.

Fear is instinctive in most of us. It is one of the results of the desire for self-preservation that is as old as the race.

But it is always a handicap. The thing that you should be most afraid of is fear—the fear that makes you a weak paltry creature, with your faculties paralyzed, and all the elements of progress that are in you terrified into inaction.

Has Anyone Laughed At You Because —

By ETHEL R. PEYSER

You pack your trunk at the last minute?

Why not? You haven't asked anyone else to pack it for you. You value your vacations, you enjoy them so much you don't want to infuse them with work.

If you are on a business trip you want no interruptions either. You know the folks who begin to pack a week before they leave. They never can do anything you ask them to do because "I must pack."

"I must throw those things in my hat trunk, etc., etc." You on the contrary, pack when there is nothing else to do but pack. You save time and pack when you have to only and don't spoil your days with it.

SO

berries poured over hot, add another layer of buttered bread and more berries until the dish is full. Set away to chill. Serve with cream and sugar. If put into a mold it may be turned out on a platter and garnished with whipped cream.

A nicely baked apple with or without cream and sugar is a fine dessert for a child. Tapioca pudding, rice pudding, prune whip, gelatin puddings of various sorts are all good for the little people as they are easily digested.

ONCE IS ENOUGH

Mother's Cook Book

The only reason a road is good, as every wanderer knows, is just because of the homes, the homes to which it goes.

FOOD FOR THE CHILDREN

FOR the first two years of a child's life the food problem is not complex as his main diet is milk. At three months of age strained orange juice may be given, a teaspoonful at a time between feedings to great advantage, supplying fruit acid and vitamins which are invaluable for growth.

As the child grows he may eat more and more the food of the adult, but the wisest course to follow is simplicity of food, no mixing of several varieties, even if enjoyed by older palates.

Oatmeal, whole wheat and cereals which add bulk and furnish the desired energy are best for breakfast. Toast, egg and a cup of hot milk or a glass of cold, depending upon the season and taste of the child, is another good breakfast. For dinner, vegetables, very little well-cooked meat and a simple dessert is the wisest plan.

Steamed pudding with rich sauces and ice cream with sauces should be avoided. A pudding like the following is good and easily digested:

Prune Pudding.

Take one cupful of prunes, remove the stones and put through the meat chopper, add one-half cupful of sugar, two eggs well beaten, three cupfuls of milk, one-half teaspoonful of orange

BIG CHECK FRAUD ON N. Y. MARKET

Most Colossal Scheme of Kind Ever Attempted on Wall Street.

STARTS A SELLING STAMPEDE

Spurious Buying Orders Involving $10,000,000 in Worthless Paper Starts Tide of Liquidation—Financiers Optimistic.

New York, May 8.—One of the most colossal frauds ever attempted was launched in Wall street Monday and before it was discovered had started a selling wave that ultimately all but demoralized the stock market. Although not widely responsible, the gigantic hoax, which was in some quarters credited to unscrupulous professional bear operators, was an important contributing factor in the stock market, which carried average prices to the lowest level this year.

At the close most financial and stock market interests were disposed to take a constructive view. It was asserted that the decline in securities had extended beyond reason, and there was evidence near the close of good support coming into the list as well as a fair amount of "bargain" buying. High-grade securities seasoned in character and with an established earning power behind them, held comparative well during the day and received their greatest support from banking and investment interests, but the volatile speculative stocks showed wide declines.

Closing prices of twenty high-grade industrial securities Monday night averaged 95.41, as compared with 96.73 on Saturday and 98.38 a week ago.

It is estimated that the fraudulent checks circulated involved nearly $1,000,000, which although small, was sufficient to unsettle sentiment and start a new tide of liquidation. The fraud took the form of spurious buying orders tendered to brokers accompanied by checks with forged certifications. They were mailed from numerous out-of-town points, mainly small cities in Pennsylvania and New York. Accepted as genuine, execution of the orders had the momentary effect of advancing the market, but when the banks notified brokerage houses of the falsity of the checks there was a rush to unload, as a protection to the firms that had been duped.

Court Holds Legislature Cannot Imprison a Critic

Austin, Tex., May 8.—The Court of Criminal Appeals, at a special sitting, ordered Hull Youngblood, San Antonio, released from the twenty-day jail sentence ordered by a joint state legislative committee. The court held that a committee of the legislature does not have power to commit an individual for contempt. Youngblood was adjudged in contempt of the legislative committee when he refused to testify after having criticised the legislature.

Street Car Strike in Chicago on June 1 Is Feared There

Chicago, May 8.—Prospects of a strike on the Chicago Surface lines on June 1, when the present contract with the street car men's union expires, were increased when a union meeting voted to demand a pay increase from 70 cents to 80 cents an hour and to ask one day off a week, with pay, or double pay for Sunday.

Powers May Seize Peking; U. S. Joins in the Parley

Washington, May 8.—A conference of diplomats now in progress in Peking, at which are represented the United States, Great Britain, France and Japan, will determine if the Chinese government shall be taken over and ruled by an international commission.

British Seek Information on U. S. View of Ships' Liquor

London, May 8.—The British are waiting to see what President Harding's policy is to be toward the Supreme court's "dry" ship decision before taking any action, it was stated in official quarters.

Chinese Bandits Ask Ransom of $2,000,000 (Mexican)

Shanghai, May 8.—A report received in official circles says the bandits who raided the Peking express early Sunday morning at Suchow, Province of Kiangsu, capturing a large party of passengers, including foreigners, have demanded $2,000,000 (Mexican) ransom for all of the captives.

British Monarchs in Rome.

Rome, May 8.—King George and Queen Mary of England arrived here Monday. King Victor Emmanuel, Queen Helena and other royalties greeted them at the station, and great crowds filled the streets.

Coast Rail Facilities Hearing.

Washington, May 8.—The Interstate Commerce commission directed that hearings on the adequacy of railroad facilities on the Pacific coast should be held at Pocatello, Idaho, beginning June 18.

Why That Bad Back?

Does spring find you miserable with an aching back? Do you feel lame, stiff, tired, nervous and depressed? Likely your kidneys have weakened. Winter is hard on the kidneys. Colds and chills and a heavier diet with less exercise tax them heavily. It's little wonder spring finds you with backache, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness and bladder irregularities. But don't be discouraged. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

An Illinois Case

Mrs. J. C. Blackburn, 615 S. Ottawa St., Dixon, Ill., says: "I was tired and run down and I could hardly do my housework. My back felt as though it would give out. I became so dizzy I had to sit down until the spells passed. My kidneys acted too often. Doan's Kidney Pills cured me and made me strong again."

CAT'S CLOTHES

"It does amuse me, me-ow, me-ow, me-ow, me-ow," said Tommy Cat, "to hear the fuss the family make about the rain."

"They don't only make a fuss about the rain, but they talk about whether it will rain or whether it won't."

"They ask each other what they will wear if they go out, and if it is likely to rain what should they wear and as it is raining what would be best for them to wear, and all such questions."

"Now, I was out the other day in the rain and when I came home again I sat down under the kitchen stove and dried myself."

"But the other members of the family came home and what did they do but hurry to the bathroom and take hot baths in turn and then they put on fresh, dry clothes and hung their other clothes out to dry back of the stove."

"Of course I don't like hot baths. I don't like baths at all except my own licking kind."

"I don't change my clothes because I can't in the first place."

"My clothes are all fast to me. They won't come off. Now and again I'm given a ribbon which will come off, or a collar which will come off, but my handsome fur suit will not come off."

"That is the chief reason, or at least one of the reasons, why I do not change my clothes when I come in out of the rain."

"But another reason is because if I were able to change my clothes I wouldn't have any others to put on!"

"I have only the one suit and I keep that looking its best. I don't let it become shabby and I don't let holes get into it."

"I take very good care of my good suit of clothes, and of my only suit of clothes."

"So you can see how absurd it sounds to my cat ears when I hear them making such a fuss over getting wet and changing their clothes."

"It is true I don't go out much in the rain. I'm very fond of it and I don't like to get caught in it."

"But even if I go out when it is raining and have made up my cat mind to do such a thing I don't go scrambling about after an umbrella."

"You never heard of a cat forgetting to return an umbrella, did you?"

"No! Of course one reason, perhaps, is because a cat has never borrowed an umbrella."

"But we wouldn't bother about such a thing. Fancy a cat going along with an umbrella held up by one of its four paws."

"Wouldn't that be a silly sight? You'll never see any of us doing such a thing."

"We'd be thought quite crazy if we did anything like that and we wouldn't be thought crazy for anything."

"Perhaps I should not blame people too much for making such a fuss about changing their clothes."

"If they don't change their clothes right away they get most frightful colds."

"Even if they sat down before or under the stove as I do they would still catch colds."

"I've always noticed that that happened if they didn't change their clothes at once."

"They begin to sneeze and blow their noses and cough in no time at all."

"And I don't catch cold. A cat doesn't catch cold like that, but then a cat doesn't run many chances of catching cold."

"A cat takes good care of himself and thinks of his comfort and of his health and of his happiness."

"Oh, dear, though, how I do smile to myself and how my whiskers do twitch with amusement when I think of what a cat would be like rushing in and acting as people do after they have been out in the rain."

"And, too, when I think of what would happen if cats went about me-owing to each other about what they should wear in case it rained and if it was going to rain and if they'd dare wear their best bonnet because there was a black cloud in the sky."

"Oh, yes, I smile many a time when I think of what would happen if we did all the funny things people do."

"Wouldn't they think we were queer? And yet we don't laugh at them. We only smile quietly to ourselves as we sit under stoves and think of these strange ways they have!"

"That is what we do, me-ow, me-ow, me-ow, me-ow."

"They Ask Each Other."

"Now, I was out the other day in the rain and when I came home again I sat down under the kitchen stove and dried myself."

"But the other members of the family came home and what did they do but hurry to the bathroom and take hot baths in turn and then they put on fresh, dry clothes and hung their other clothes out to dry back of the stove."

"Of course I don't like hot baths. I don't like baths at all except my own licking kind."

"I don't change my clothes because I can't in the first place."

"My clothes are all fast to me. They won't come off. Now and again I'm given a ribbon which will come off, or a collar which will come off, but my handsome fur suit will not come off."

LESSON FOR MAY 13

DAVID, THE POET-KING

LESSON TEXT—1 Sam. 16:1-3.
GOLDEN TEXT—Surely, goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life.—Ps. 23:6.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Ps. 51; Isa. 9:7; Jer. 33:26; Luke 1:32; Acts 22:34, 37; 1 Cor. 15:20; 1 Pet. 1:3.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Shepherd Boy Chosen King.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God Calls a Boy to Be King.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—David, a Friend.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Lessons From the Life of David.

I. Samuel Mourns for Saul (v. 1).

1. Why He Mourned. The death of Saul was no doubt a personal loss to Samuel, for Saul was a commanding and lovable personality. Then, too, the ruin of so promising a career would deeply affect a soul like Samuel. Finally the humiliation to God and God's people grieved his heart.

2. Excessive Mourning Rebuked. The fact that God had rejected Saul should have lifted Samuel out of his grief. Excessive grief over that which God does is a reflection upon Him and should be rebuked. In all God's acts we should submit although it may change our plans. When sorrow becomes a hindrance to the discharge of duty, it merits rebuke.

II. Samuel Sent to Anoint David (vv. 1-3).

1. Samuel's Fear (v. 2). Perhaps by this time Saul was becoming a desperate character. Samuel knew that if Saul should hear that he was taking steps to anoint a successor to his throne, his own life would be in danger. Samuel was wise in submitting this difficult situation to the Lord. God's servants are to be brave. But even when going on errands for God we should not court danger. We should exercise the greatest caution so that unnecessary dangers be avoided.

2. The Lord's Direction (vv. 2, 3). The Lord smoothed the way for Samuel. He showed him how to perform his duty and escape the danger. Samuel was to take a helper and announce that he was going to offer a sacrifice unto the Lord and to call Jesse to the sacrifice. The prophet was not told all that would happen. This is usually God's way with us. He gives us our work piece by piece and guides us step by step. Samuel's purpose was known only to him. It was to be kept a secret so that the news would not reach Saul. This was a shrewd device, but entirely legitimate. There is not necessity for us to reveal all our purposes.

III. Samuel's Obedience (vv. 4-13).

1. The Trembling Elders of Bethlehem (vv. 4, 5). It seems that the whole nation was shot through with fear because of Saul's sin. To the elders' alarming inquiry Samuel responded with the assurance of peace, inviting them to join him in worshiping the Lord.

2. Examination of Jesse's Sons (vv. 6-12). The Lord had revealed to Samuel that one of Jesse's sons was to be the new king, but not the particular one. The selection of the right one was a most important matter as destined hung upon it. (1) Eliab rejected (vv. 6, 7). Eliab was the eldest son and therefore he was the first presented as having first right to the place of honor. Further, he was a splendid specimen of a man, tall and majestic in appearance so that even Samuel was captivated by him as he had been by Saul. (10:24). Outward appearance was favorable but the realities seen by God were against him. God knows whom He can trust with great responsibilities. We frequently estimate men by their dress, culture, wealth and position. These are only surface manifestations and frequently lead us astray, but God looks into the heart. (2) David chosen (vv. 8-12). All but one of Jesse's sons had been looked upon but still the Lord's choice had not appeared. Jesse's reply to Samuel's question as to whether all his children had appeared seems to imply that David was not of much importance. He was considered good enough to watch the sheep but not important enough to be called to the feast. Because David was faithful as a shepherd boy, he was in line for promotion when God's given time arrived.

3. David Anointed (v. 13). When the shepherd lad appeared, the Lord directed Samuel to anoint him. When the oil was applied the Spirit of the Lord came upon him. David was a gifted and attractive lad but this was of no avail without the Spirit of God. Power must come from God. Only as we are anointed by the Holy Ghost can we truly do the Lord's will and work.

Knowing When.

Next to knowing when to seize an opportunity, the most important thing in life is to know when to forego an advantage.—Disraeli.

Indulgence.

It is only necessary to grow old to become more indulgent. I see no fault committed that I have not committed myself.—Goethe.

Our Life.

We pass our life in deliberation, and we die upon it.—Quessnel.

History of Baldwin Apple.

The Department of Agriculture says that soon after 1740 the Baldwin came up as a chance seedling on the farm of John Ball Wilpington, near Lowell, Mass., and for about forty years afterward its cultivation was confined to that immediate neighborhood. Eventually the farm came into the possession of a Mr. Butters, who gave the apple the name Woodpecker or Pecker, and it was also called Butters. Deacon Samuel Thompson, a surveyor of Wolburn, brought it to the attention of Colonel Baldwin of the same town, by whom it was propagated and more widely introduced in eastern Massachusetts as early as 1784. From Colonel Baldwin's interest in the variety it came to be called the Baldwin. In 1817 the original tree was still alive, but it perished between 1817 and 1832. A monument to the Baldwin apple now marks the location.

Gratify your liking for appreciation by appreciating your neighbor.

On the Night Shift.

Nighthawks and whippoorwills work chiefly at night, when most of the other birds are off duty, and at day-break their good work is taken up by the swifts and swallows, says Nature magazine of Washington. These birds are provided with big scapnet mouths, and as they swing through the air over wide areas of country, they scoop up almost unbelievable numbers of insects. Six hundred were taken from the stomach of a single Arkansas nighthawk.

There Is No Other Food Like Grape-Nuts

WHILE practically every man, woman and child in the English-speaking world knows Grape-Nuts as a delicious, nourishing and wholesome cereal, and while it is common knowledge that Grape-Nuts with milk or cream is a complete food, many housewives do not know of the appetizing and economical dishes that can be prepared with Grape-Nuts. It lends itself, we believe, to more uses than any other cereal. The convenience and economy of Grape-Nuts, and the flavor, zest and wholesomeness which it imparts to other food, make it invaluable in every home.

Frequently we receive interesting letters from women throughout the country, telling about the attractive dishes they make with Grape-Nuts—delicious puddings, salads, dressings for fowls, etc. No doubt there are thousands of women who are finding varied uses for Grape-Nuts in their home cooking, and even more thousands who will be glad to learn of those varied uses; for while we all cling to old favorite dishes, we also welcome and enjoy a change.

So that is the thought back of our offer of more than $7500.00 in cash for new ways of using Grape-Nuts. To those women who are already using Grape-Nuts in various ways, other than as a breakfast cereal or in the recipes given here, and to those women who would like to try their hand at developing some new way to use Grape-Nuts, we offer to buy at $50.00 each not less than 101 new Grape-Nuts Recipes. We plan to include these new Recipes in a beautifully illustrated cook book.

What Is Grape-Nuts?

Grape-Nuts is a highly nutritious food in the form of crisp, golden granules. It contains the full nutrient of wheat and barley, including vitamin-B and mineral elements required for building sturdy health. These elements are often lacking in the ordinary diet, chiefly through "over-refinement" in the preparation of food.

No other food is so thoroughly baked as Grape-Nuts. More than 20 hours are consumed in the baking process which makes Grape-Nuts easy to digest, and also develops a natural sweetness from the grains themselves.

The form and crispness of Grape-Nuts invite thorough mastication—a decided advantage because this not only provides proper exercise for the teeth, but makes for good digestion.

Every housewife in the Land should take advantage of this extraordinary opportunity to earn the tidy sum of $50.00 by a little pleasant and educational effort in her own home. Also the fair and equal chance to secure one of the liberal awards to be made by Good Housekeeping Institute.

Moreover, there's the greater knowledge of the value of Grape-Nuts, not only as a delicious breakfast cereal, but in the preparation of a variety of appetizing dishes that add to the health and pleasure of the whole family.

Conditions Governing the Purchase of, and Awards for Grape-Nuts Recipes

The Postum Cereal Company will buy not less than 101 Recipes or suggestions for new Uses of Grape-Nuts, paying $50.00 for each one accepted. This offer is open to every person in the United States.

Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by Good Housekeeping Magazine, will decide an award of $2500.00 for the best four of the 101 or more Recipes or suggestions for new Uses of Grape-Nuts, so purchased. $1000.00 for the 1st selection; $750.00 for the 2nd selection; $500.00 for the 3rd selection; and $250.00 for the 4th selection.

Recipes must be mailed between May 1st, 1923 and August 31st, 1923.

Recipes or suggestions for new uses submitted for purchase must not duplicate any of the ten Recipes printed in this announcement.

No Recipe will be purchased from anyone directly or indirectly connected with the Postum Cereal Company, Inc., or Good Housekeeping Institute.

If more than one Recipe is offered, each must be written on a separate sheet. Write name and address plainly on each Recipe submitted.

In the event of a tie for any award offered, an award identical in all respects with that tied for will be made to each one tying.

It is not necessary to purchase Grape-Nuts. A suitable quantity will be sent upon request to those desiring to submit recipes.

Your Recipe should state the exact number intended to be served. Recipes should be carefully tested to make sure that proportions and directions for preparing will bring best results.

Form of Recipe: First, write name of you. Recipe at top of sheet; underneath list all ingredients, using level measurements only; then the directions for preparing, worded simply and accurately. Do not send specimen dish.

In considering Recipes for purchase, and for awards by Good Housekeeping Institute, account will be taken of the following points:

(a) Palatability.
(b) Simplicity and economy.
(c) Accuracy and clearness of expression of recipe.

Announcement of the Recipes purchased, and Awards by Good Housekeeping Institute, will be made in January Good Housekeeping.

Recipes submitted to the Postum Cereal Company for purchase will not be returned.

Below are ten Recipes showing a few of the many appetizing dishes that can be made with Grape-Nuts. Read them over, try some of them, and then you will find it easy to work out a new Recipe or think of a new use for Grape-Nuts, that we may purchase. And remember, your Recipe or suggestion for new use of Grape-Nuts may also merit one of the large awards.

GRAPE-NUTS Ice Cream
Prepare plain flavored ice cream in the usual way. Just before the cream hardens in freezing, add Grape-Nuts as it comes from the package, in the proportion of one-half cup of Grape-Nuts to one quart of ice cream. If you buy ice cream ready made, add Grape-Nuts in place of nuts. You'll find the resulting flavor unique.

GRAPE-NUTS Salads
1 cup Grape-Nuts 2 cubed bananas
1 sliced orange 2 teaspoons lemon-juice
1/2 cup cubed pineapple
Cut up the fruit, add lemon-juice, mix with Grape-Nuts, and serve on bed of lettuce with Cream Salad Dressing. Makes four to six portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Six Minute Pudding
1/2 cup Grape-Nuts 1 tablespoon sugar
1/2 cup scalded milk 1/2 cup raisins
Cover Grape-Nuts with scalded milk. Add sugar, raisins, and a little nutmeg. Cook six minutes directly over the heat, stirring constantly, and serve with any good pudding sauce. Makes four to six portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Cookies
1 cup Grape-Nuts 2 1/2 cups flour
1/2 cup shortening 2 cups baking powder
1 1/4 cups light brown sugar 1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 cup milk 1/2 teaspoon cloves
2 well-beaten eggs 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped seeded raisins
Cream shortening and sugar. Add milk and well-beaten eggs. Add well-sifted dry ingredients, and raisins that have been dusted with part of the flour, and then the Grape-Nuts. Beat thoroughly and drop from a spoon on baking sheet one and one-half inches apart. Bake in a moderate oven for fifteen minutes.

GRAPE-NUTS Cheese Casserole
3/4 cup Grape-Nuts 1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cups milk 1/4 cups chopped American cheese
1 tablespoon butter 2 eggs
1 teaspoon salt Few grains paprika
Scald the milk. Add Grape-Nuts, butter, and seasonings and combine with cheese and eggs; the latter slightly beaten. Pour into a buttered baking dish, surround with hot water and bake slowly for forty-five minutes in a slow oven. Serve as the main course at luncheon, supper, or a meatless dinner. Makes four to six portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Fruit Pudding
1 cup Grape-Nuts 1 pint boiling water
1 package lemon-Jell-O 1/2 cup seeded raisins or chopped dates
Add the boiling water to the Jell-O or lemon flavored gelatin and stir until it is dissolved. Pour into a mould, and after the mixture has cooled slightly, add the Grape-Nuts and fruit; then allow the mixture to chill and harden. Makes four to six portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Meat Loaf
1 cup Grape-Nuts 1 egg
1/2 cup veal, mutton or beef 2 cups pastry flour
1/2 cup salt pork 2 tablespoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons milk 1/2 teaspoon chopped parsley
1/2 minced onion

Put the meat through a food chopper, add seasonings. Brown minced onion in a little fat before adding Grape-Nuts, milk, and slightly beaten eggs. Pack in a baking dish, shaping like a loaf of baked bread and bake evenly on top. Bake for forty-five minutes, basting frequently using one-half cup of hot water, a tablespoon at a time. Just before taking from oven, brush with some of the browned butter and egg and a little milk. Brown for one minute. Makes four portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Loaf Cake
1 cup Grape-Nuts 2 1/2 cups pastry flour
1/2 cup butter 2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 cup sugar 1 teaspoon salt
3 eggs 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Cream butter and sugar; add egg-yolks well beaten; then milk and Grape-Nuts. Beat the mixture thoroughly, fold in alternately the stiffly beaten egg-whites and flour sifted with baking powder three times; lastly, add the vanilla. Have cake pan previously greased and lightly floured; fill two-thirds full and bake in a moderate oven for forty-five minutes.

GRAPE-NUTS Tomato Soup
1/4 cup Grape-Nuts 1 sliced onion
1 quart tomatoes 2 teaspoons salt
2 cups water 1/2 teaspoon salt
10 peppercorns 1 whole clove
3 tablespoons butter
Cook tomatoes, water and seasonings twenty minutes; strain and add salt and soda. Crush the Grape-Nuts with a rolling pin. Melt the butter, add the rolled Grape-Nuts, combine and heat the soup to the boiling point. Substitute whole Grape-Nuts for croutons in serving individual soup plates. Makes four to six portions.

GRAPE-NUTS Fudge
1/2 cup Grape-Nuts 2 squares chocolate
2 cups granulated sugar 1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk 2 tablespoons vanilla
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
Combine the sugar, milk, and salt, and place over a slow heat, and stir constantly until the sugar is dissolved. Then continue boiling gently, without stirring, until the thermometer registers 238 degrees F., or the mixture forms a soft ball when dropped in cold water. Set the pan in bowl of cold water and allow to stand undisturbed until there is no heat in the fudge mixture. Remove and add the butter and vanilla. Beat the mixture until creamy and thick, then add Grape-Nuts and continue beating until stiff enough to knead. Turn out on a buttered plate and cut into desired squares.
